

(ii) the larger distances that have to be covered in the course of one's daily life in the City (attending office, public functions and the minimum of social engagements).

An argument has also been advanced that the scale of house allowances itself seems further less in that the average rent paid by Government servants occupying Government bungalows in the mofussil is only about 7 per cent, whereas an officer in the City can hope for no allowance till the house rent paid by him exceeds 10 per cent of his emoluments. The suggestion apparently is that the Madras House Allowances should be payable when an officer's actual rent exceeds 7 per cent, instead of 10 per cent of his pay.

3. The Government have very carefully considered the whole question. They desire to point out that a compensatory allowance is not intended to enable an officer to save money. Presidency allowances which were hitherto granted as 'compensatory allowances' were mainly given for relief in the matter of high cost of house rents in the City. This is a tangible and amenable factor that Government servants cannot avoid. The other factors such as conveyance charges, social obligations, etc., referred to by the memosubmitters are more in character, are largely within the officers' own control and may well be regarded as being offset by the increased social amenities of life in Madras. The Madras House Allowance Scheme was accordingly intended to grant assistance in the matter of house rent, which is susceptible of test and proof, with reference to the facts of each case, and the Government see no reason for departing from it in principle.

As regards the suggestion that the allowance should be paid whenever an officer's house rent exceeds 7 per cent of his pay, the Government, besides observing that averages should not be pressed too far in these matters, consider that the '10 per cent of salary' rule is an old and well recognized one and that it should not be varied.

4. Some of the memosubmitters have pointed out, that while in the order levying the emergency cut on salaries it was allowed that payment of house rent on Government quarters should be limited to 30 per cent of an officer's pay or refund by the cut, yet in the Madras House Allowance Rules, an allowance did not accrue until the rent paid exceeded 10 per cent of the usual pay of an officer.

While it is true that this may result in some cases in officers becoming eligible for a slightly smaller allowance (the allowance being equivalent to the rent paid minus 10 per cent of the officer's pay) it must be mentioned that in other cases it will be beneficial to Government servants, as in many instances the gross pay will be an officer's income of a higher class carrying a greater allowance. The scheme has been introduced as a permanent measure and does not take account of variable factors which would fluctuate from time to time.

5. The Government, however, are willing to recognise that the Madras House Allowance Scheme was introduced at very short notice and that Government servants who were in receipt of the old Presidency allowances had probably too little time to adjust their scale of expenditure and style of living to the new conditions, and that this fact, coupled with the emergency cut in pay, has caused hardship to officers. In view of these considerations, the Government are pleased to pass the following orders:

An officer affected by the Madras House Allowance Scheme who was in receipt of a Presidency allowance on 30th September 1932 and who has failed to qualify wholly or in part for a house allowance of the full amount permissible to his class may be granted—

(i) either a house allowance not exceeding the maximum admissible to his class; or

(ii) such supplementary house allowance as will suffice to make up that maximum, any house allowance he may have been found eligible for under the Madras House Allowance Rules;

Provided that neither the house allowance contemplated under (i) nor the total of house allowance and supplementary house allowance contemplated under (ii) shall in any case exceed the amount which he actually drew as Presidency allowance on 30th September 1932;

Provided further that no allowance shall be given to an officer who is occupying free of rent quarters either built or rented for him or has been granted house rent allowance in lieu thereof.

The following examples will make clear the effect of the enactment:—

(i) An officer in group I who was in receipt of a Presidency allowance of Rs. 120 and who had not qualified for any allowance under the Madras House Allowance Rules will draw Rs. 100 as house allowance.

(ii) An officer in group I who was in receipt of a Presidency allowance of Rs. 150 and who had already qualified for a house allowance of Rs. 20 will get (Rs. 150 — 30) Rs. 120 as supplementary house allowance.

(iii) An officer in group II who was in receipt of a Presidency allowance of Rs. 50 but who under the rules is eligible for a maximum house allowance of Rs. 75 will draw a house allowance of Rs. 50 only, if he had not already qualified for any house allowance;

if he had qualified for a house-allowance of Rs. 30, he will get (Rs. 30—20) Rs. 20 as supplementary house allowance.

3. The above concession will extend up to 31st March 1933, in the case of officers under the rule-making powers of this Government, and up to 31st March 1934, in the case of All India Service officers whether or not the rule is pay is removed on that date. The Government wish to emphasise the fact that the concession is granted solely to enable officers to adjust their expenditure to new conditions and that it will on no account be extended beyond the dates specified.

4. Heads of departments will accordingly forward, by the 15th April 1933, applications for house allowance admissible under G.O. No. 433, Finance, dated 27th September 1932, for the period from 1st April to 30th September 1933, from the following classes of officers who will not be eligible for the concession specified in paragraph 4 of this order during this period, viz.,

- (a) officers under the rule-making powers of this Government; and
(b) those officers of the All-India Services who came to Madras after the inception of the Madras House Allowance Scheme (i.e., on or after the 1st October 1932).

If the security offered is not personally sufficient, the Director shall be made in the case of lands offered by mortgagor as collateral security, may being taken to see that the security is not only the required lands, but the mortgagor of the land and that, if he is not satisfied, the land offered as collateral security, the extent of his own individual interest therein enough with the mortgage of the land offered.

Otherwise and in all cases where the land to be improved is itself accepted as the security, no such certificate or opinion need be produced. Where no previous certificate is demanded, it shall be issued in the return form preceding the date of application for the lease.

VII. Mortgage not voluntarily eligible for lease.—(1) The mortgage of any land, which is proposed to be offered as security, is not voluntarily eligible for lease for the improvement of such land.

(3) If the landholder or his legal agent or manager does not, within the time specified in sub-rule (b), signify his objection on either of the grounds mentioned in subrule [46] or if the Director after considering any objection made decides that the applicant is an occupier and that he is entitled to make the improvement, and that the value of the occupancy right is at least as great as the value actually obtained by the applicant is sufficient for the loan, he may sanction it himself if he is competent to do so and if not, forward the documents of the case to the Local Government.

The security and or bonds to be taken from the borrower and his guaranty, if any, shall be in such one or more of Forms VI, VII, VIII, annexed, as shall be required by the lender.

12. If the Director is not satisfied with the purchase price of any plant, the applicant shall submit to the Director a statement of the reasons for the purchase price. The Director may, at his discretion, authorize the applicant to sell the plant at a price agreed to by the Director. The Director shall have the right to purchase and acquire the plant at a price determined by the Director.

Provided that the Director may, if the applicant desires, permit him to purchase such plant as the Director may approve and advance to him out of the loan money such sum as may be necessary to make the payment. The plant shall, however, be entrusted to the worker for execution.

XII. Encroachment of improvements from assessment to land owner.—When land is assessed for the redemption of water rights, the assessment is made on the basis of unimproved value. The Dinkelspiel, in consultation with the Controller, gave the following order, in which the land is to be taken in the former case and the owner on which water is to be taken in the latter case including the ground after which the increase in value due to the improvements may make the land payable in section 11 of the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1937. He takes into account in assessing the assessment of land to be taken on the land and also assessed such improvements before the land is granted.

Except as otherwise stated in these rules, the rule of interest charged shall be the rate in force on the date on which the loan is sanctioned. The applicants whose applications are pending disposal when the rate of interest is raised shall be given an opportunity of agreeing to the altered rate or of withdrawing their applications.

If an additional loan is granted to complete a work for which a loan has previously been granted, interest shall be charged on the additional loan at the rate on which interest on the original loan is charged.

XIV. Calculation of Interest.—Interest on the loan in any period thereof shall accrue from such date as the Government may fix with due regard to the time at which such loan or portion was actually drawn for expenditure.

In calculating interest, the calendar month shall be the unit, periods of fifteen days and over in one calendar month being treated as one calendar month and periods of less than fifteen days being ignored. If the amount of interest payable contains a fraction of an anna it shall be rounded off to the nearest whole anna, six paise counting as the next higher anna.

XV. Method of repayment by equal or unequal annual installments.—
 Loans shall be repayable by equal annual installments, including both the principal and interest, the amount of each installment to be the same, while such is the manner of repayment in the N.Y. The date for the repayment of each annual installment, of principal and interest shall be fixed by the Director so as to coincide, if possible, with the date of payment of the last previous installment of the interest. The first installment shall be payable not less than twelve months and not more than eighteen months from the date of the last date under rule 3.3 (a) in the borrower's account.

From the interval between the date of the last debit and the date fixed for the payment of the first installment twelve months, people's houses shall be maintained for the period as terms of twelve months at the rate at which the loan is granted in the manner prescribed in rule XIV and shall be removed along with the first installment of payment.

(c) The number and amount of the annual payments in which the loan shall be repaid shall be fixed by the Director with due regard to the probable durability of the improvement proposed to be effected with the loan, to the value or sufficiency of the security given, to the circumstances of the borrower and to the other circumstances of the case; but the number of installments so fixed shall not exceed the following maxima, namely:—

- | | | |
